

Biography François Langlois

I am pleased to have the opportunity to mark a remarkable achievement by a Canadian citizen and third Quebecker who reached the seven summits and one of the 180 climbers on earth who have scaled the highest peaks on the seven continents. François Langlois accomplished this feat when he reached the summit of Vinson massif in Antarctica.

In 10 years of adventures, this philanthropist and explorer has collected more than $4 million for sick children. Born prematurely with respiratory distress syndrome, he spent a month in an incubator fighting for his life. When starting out on his expedition to the top of Everest, he promised to give back to children.

Mission accomplished for François Langlois who, during his expeditions, has always remembered the seriously ill children he has met on his hospital visits.

Dream it, Believe it, Live it!

Follow Francois Langlois' adventures at:

www.francoislanglois.com